WHATSAPP IMPERSONATION AND CONFLICTING-DISCLOSURE WARNING · MESSAGING UTILITIES

Five WhatsApp lookalikes. Five different developer accounts.

Five independent apps imitate WhatsApp's familiar green chat identity while selling their own paid features. This report flags that presentation as WhatsApp impersonation, identifies all five Apple developer accounts and shows the original icons; one messenger listing even describes a quotes app and contradicts its own privacy label.

Apple publisher accounts that impersonate WhatsApp: Mike Forward · 1825332092 · Miten Motisariya · 1806395397 · sercan gok · 1783553796 · SENAY GUMUSOGLU · 1827080137 · 5Season Limited · 1632638759

A WhatsApp title. A description for a quotes app.

Messenger Web for WhatsApp uses a green speech bubble, a white W and the subtitle Whats Web GB App Cloner. Its current description then introduces Quote Nest and explains motivational quotes, favourites, sharing and daily reminders. That is a clear mismatch between what the title sells and what the description explains.

Its internal app identifier — the label developers give software — is com.mitway.quotes. That supports the quotes-product trail, but it does not show when the branding changed. The original launch appearance was not recovered.

The listing does say the app is unofficial and not connected with WhatsApp. That disclaimer matters, but it does not fix the description of a different product or make the green WhatsApp-led identity easy to distinguish at first glance.

Current Apple description names Quote Nest beneath Messenger Web for WhatsApp. E5.

Five WhatsApp lookalikes — and the accounts publishing them.

WAHub AI, Web Messenger for WhatsApp Duo and WA Web - Dual Chat App are now included as investigation subjects alongside the two supplied apps. This report assesses their combined names, green colours, chat symbols and marketing as WhatsApp impersonation or a misleading WhatsApp-style identity. The individual artwork differences and independence disclaimers are shown with each finding.

Each profile below is a separate Apple developer account. Listing them together does not prove one owner or an official WhatsApp partnership. The five other apps on 5Season's account remain catalog references in this investigation; they are not labelled WhatsApp impersonators.

The five reported messaging apps and their exact publishers

App / Apple ID	Apple developer profile	What the branding comparison shows
Dual Messenger for WA + · 6748343409	Mike Forward · 1825332092	White telephone and chat bubble on green, with a GB badge; WhatsApp-like visual identity.
Messenger Web for WhatsApp · 6744178298	Miten Motisariya · 1806395397	Green chat bubble, white W and WhatsApp-led title; description instead presents Quote Nest.
WAHub AI – Dual WhatsApp Web · 6739065792	sercan gok · 1783553796	Green telephone and overlapping chat bubbles closely echo WhatsApp; independent-app disclaimer remains relevant.
Web Messenger for WhatsApp Duo · 6748703461	SENAY GUMUSOGLU · 1827080137	WhatsApp-led title and green W/chat-bubble identity; the description explicitly explains an independent browser.
WA Web - Dual Chat App · 6464555232	5Season Limited · 1632638759	WA-led title and green chat bubble with QR/2 symbols; different from the original telephone but similar brand presentation.

Five Apple developer accounts. No common owner established.

The five reported messaging apps sit on five separate Apple developer IDs: Mike Forward, Miten Motisariya, sercan gok, SENAY GUMUSOGLU and 5Season Limited. The first four exact account lookups each return one current product; 5Season returns six. Only its WA Web messaging product is included in the WhatsApp impersonation assessment.

The diagram identifies each app and its publisher. Matching brand styling is a branding finding, not an ownership bridge. No shared legal operator was established between the five accounts. WAHub's linked policy declares Turkey; Apple's WA Web trader disclosure identifies a China company; the other three countries are not established.

Dual Messenger: the familiar telephone mark, with a GB badge.

Dual Messenger for WA + keeps a white telephone inside a white speech bubble on vivid green, then adds a small GB badge and a changed green background. These are the most recognizable parts of WhatsApp's identity. The current official icon and the independent icon are shown in their original form at the top.

The app advertises web messaging, multiple accounts, direct messages, audio-to-text instructions, wallpapers, avatars, quotes and a password lock. It is a separate paid-feature utility from Mike Forward. Apple lists iPhone and iPad support; no Mac compatibility is shown for this product.

The current US description advertises $4.99 weekly renewal, an estimated $259.48 yearly cost if kept active. The displayed purchase list contains other weekly prices up to $5.99. That highest listed weekly offer would cost about $311.48 yearly. Prices are shown for transparency; no purchase or unauthorized charge was tested.

"Data Not Collected" does not match the linked policy.

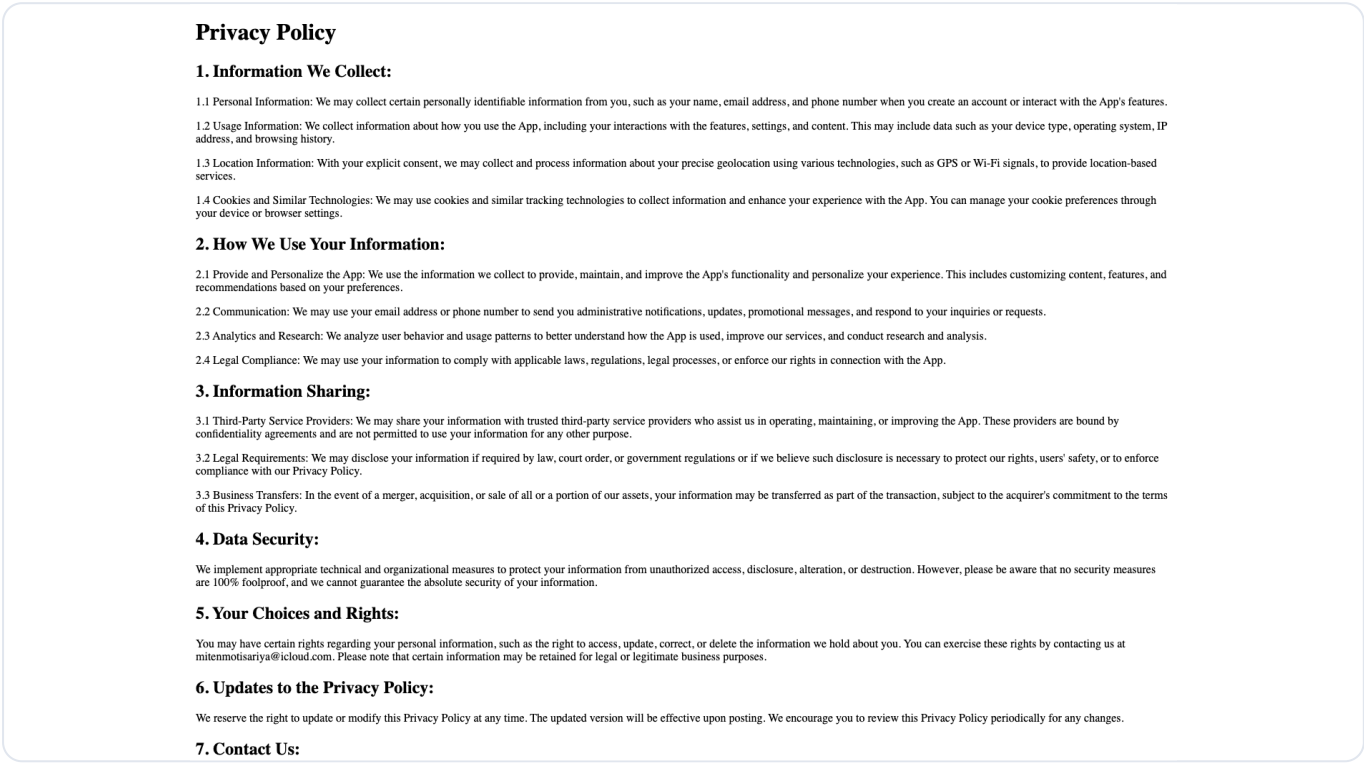

Messenger Web for WhatsApp tells Apple users that no data is collected. Its linked privacy policy describes automatic device and usage information, IP addresses, browsing history, tracking, marketing and sharing. It also discusses contact details and precise location with consent.

The linked terms contain another mismatch: stock photos, videos, CC0 image licensing, gallery access and personalized advertising through AdMob and Facebook Audience Network. These passages do not clearly explain a WhatsApp messenger.

These are contradictory public disclosures that Apple should require the developer to resolve. They do not prove that messages were intercepted or that every data category is actually collected. Dual Messenger is different: its current Apple label openly declares usage/diagnostic tracking, so this report does not apply the no-data claim to that app.

Messenger Web's Apple privacy label says Data Not Collected. E15.

Our free applications use the AdMob advertising platform and Facebook Audience Network. It can display personalized, targeted ads based on the user's clicks and other actions and search terms. We use device identifiers to personalize content and ads, to provide social media features, and to analyze our traffic. We also share such identifiers and other information from your device with our social media, advertising, and analytics partners.

Our Warranty and Liability:

THIS APP SHALL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU OR TO ANY OTHER PERSON OR ENTITY FOR ANY GENERAL, PUNITIVE, SPECIAL, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES, OR LOST PROFITS OR ANY OTHER DAMAGES, COSTS OR LOSSES ARISING OUT OF YOUR USE OF THIS APP OR ITS CONTENT.

When uploading images, the social network retains the right to use your content freely for any purpose.

So, is it safe to use images from this app on Social Media Platforms? In our opinion, YES it is because CC0 is in agreement with Social Media's terms of use. To clear things up, here is the clear answer by Facebook about posting contents on social media platforms:

> "In our understanding, the "sub-licensable" clause [of CC0] does not prevent the user from uploading a work to a social media platform. It simply articulates that the user is not granting any rights. Those rights have already been waived (or where applicable, authorized by the fallback license) by the licensor; ergo, they're not the licensee's to license."

Contact us

You can contact us via E-mail (mitenmotisariya@icloud.com) if you are interested in buying the app's special content (promotional videos) or to work as per your requirements.

A blank provider name and a six-day-old support domain.

Dual Messenger’s privacy page is titled WhatsToolbox Privacy Policy, and the provider-name field in its opening sentence is blank. Its Developer Website link leads to a Google Form that required sign-in during the checks, rather than an openly readable company or product page.

The policy gives a support address on weworktogetherforlive.com. Both the domain registry and registrar date that domain’s registration to 11 November 2026, only six days before this investigation. The policy itself says it took effect on 9 July 2025. A later contact edit can explain that difference; it does not prove the policy was fabricated.

The domain has SpaceMail mail-server records, although no website A record was returned. Therefore the missing homepage is not proof that the email is fake or cannot receive mail. Registrar privacy-service details identify an intermediary, not the app owner. Free document hosting and a sign-in gate are support-transparency issues, not a fraud verdict on their own.

Germany and Ireland do not identify a business country.

Apple’s German and Irish pages say that Mike Forward and Miten Motisariya have not identified themselves as traders for these apps. The inspected provider disclosures did not supply a registered business country or company number.

Country is therefore Unknown for both main apps. A person with a matching name on a social or code-hosting site is not enough to identify the seller. Amazon’s ap-south-1 server region is also not evidence of where Miten lives. No company, director, nationality or previously banned account was verified for either seller.

Country evidence for the three added accounts.

WAHub's own product-specific policy states Turkey. SENAY GUMUSOGLU's inspected Apple disclosure provides no registered country, and the linked website is inaccessible to the research client. Name-search matches do not prove who operates that account.

5Season has stronger, different evidence: Apple names Guangdong Wuji Network Technology Co., Ltd. as the trader for WA Web and gives Guangzhou, China, with DUNS number 715703184. The linked domain's registry also shows Guangdong and country code CN. These records contradict assigning this account to Turkey.

Contacts and domains do not yet connect the accounts.

The three accounts use different published support trails. WAHub's Google Docs policy provides a project Gmail contact and points to wahubmessenger.com, which did not resolve during this check. SENAY links ipekapps.com; its public owner record is a privacy intermediary. 5Season uses 5season.top and project Outlook support contacts. No exact support address, policy URL or legal-business identifier was found across the three.

The active websites also have different DNS records — the public records that direct websites and email. ipekapps.com uses Amazon nameservers and the website address 157.90.129.125; 5season.top uses Alibaba nameservers and 47.242.192.81. Different infrastructure does not rule out a common operator, but these checks did not provide that missing link.

There is one timing lead: Apple’s current histories place Web Messenger Duo version 1.0 on 8 October 2025 and WAHub version 1.0 on 10 October. Both also list updates on 15 and 21 October 2025. Those matching update days are worth recording, but do not establish shared code or ownership. The version numbers and change descriptions differ.

WAHub AI: a close telephone logo and unclear AI privacy.

WAHub AI – Dual WhatsApp Web, from sercan gok, combines overlapping green speech bubbles with a white telephone. It is the closest additional example to WhatsApp's telephone-and-bubble identity found in this screen. The description explicitly says it is independent and not affiliated with WhatsApp or Meta.

It advertises AI analysis of chats, screenshots and documents while promising that conversations never leave the device. Apple says Data Not Collected, but the linked product-specific Google Docs policy describes automatic IP/device/usage collection and tracking. The listing does not explain the AI service or how that promise is implemented; this investigation did not test message handling.

The policy names Turkey. That is a developer-published policy statement, rather than a verified company address. This account's current lookup returns one app, with no documented contact or policy connection to the two main sellers.

Web Messenger Duo: independent-browser wording, WhatsApp-style identity.

Web Messenger for WhatsApp Duo is published by SENAY GUMUSOGLU. Its green icon uses the same speech-bubble idea, replacing the telephone with W and a small 2 badge. The description prominently says unofficial and independent and explains that it is a browser adapting WhatsApp Web and other websites to a small screen.

One visible US reviewer, Sp asim, complains about being asked to pay after limited use. Positive reviews also appear. That is a user complaint about the experience, not independent proof of an unauthorized payment. The store lists $1.99 weekly, $2.99 monthly and $19.99 yearly offers.

The linked ipekapps.com website, privacy and terms returned 403 to the research client. Those access failures do not prove the pages are absent. No exact business, support or policy bridge to Mike Forward, Miten Motisariya or sercan gok was established.

WA Web: another green identity, plus a different legal seller.

WA Web - Dual Chat App appears under 5Season Limited, while Apple's seller field names Guangdong Wuji Network Technology Co., Ltd. These two names occur in the same exact product record. That is a verified publisher-to-seller link, not a connection to either of the main accounts. The fresh German and Irish trader panels identify Guangzhou, China, and DUNS 715703184; the product's country association is therefore China, not Turkey.

The icon has a green speech bubble, QR-code grid and small 2 badge. It differs from WhatsApp's telephone symbol, although the overall green chat identity is familiar. The description and dedicated website explicitly say it is unofficial and not affiliated with WhatsApp. Its Apple privacy label also discloses identifier tracking.

The current US page shows a $2.99 WhatsWeb PRO purchase without a period in that row. It cannot be described as a weekly plan from that price alone. Positive reviews and a complaint about accessing messages are both visible; neither establishes message theft.

Apple should review the identity and the mismatched disclosures.

The strongest issues are visible before any download: familiar WhatsApp-style artwork, a WhatsApp-titled listing describing Quote Nest, and a no-data privacy label contradicted by the linked documents. These are concrete misleading-presentation and disclosure problems, not a conclusion drawn from a developer's name or location.

WhatsApp's published brand rules reject confusingly similar telephone logos and using its identity for another company's product. Apple's rules cover accurate names and descriptions, copycats, intellectual property, privacy and subscriptions. Supporting WhatsApp Web is different from presenting an independent product as WhatsApp.

The evidence supports a direct consumer warning and a request for Apple to inspect these listings. It does not establish a confirmed fraud network, an Apple account termination, unauthorized message collection or a dated switch after App Review. Current metadata and search-index remnants cannot substitute for verified before-and-after captures.

CHECK THE SOURCES

The records behind this report.

Authored investigation followed by every page of both supplied analyses, 14 + 11 original pages. Original icons, all 25 primary promotional images, additional comparison examples, loaded source captures and an account diagram are retained. Public source material contains visible support contacts. No app was installed or run; no QR login, account link, purchase, contact form or message interception test was performed. Follow-up country and connection checks compare the three additional accounts' contacts, company disclosures, domain registration, mail routes and nameservers. No shared owner was established. The report now covers five primary WhatsApp-style messaging apps on five separately identified Apple developer profiles. Only the two original supplied apps contribute the 25 source PDF pages.
